Army To Buy Arks, Torahs For 604 Chapels
For Camp InterFaith Houses of Worship

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
WASHINGTON.—The army will provide arks and "Sifrei Torah" (Scrolls of the Law) for Jewish soldiers in 604 inter-denominational chapels to be constructed in training centers throughout the country, under an unprecedented program announced by the War Department.

The program, which will cost $12,816,000, will give each regimental unit a chapel of its own. The chapels will be used at different hours of the day by chaplains of the Jewish, Catholic and Protestant faiths, all of whom will be assigned office space in the structures.

The Arks of the Law will be an innovation in army chapels. It is expected that the scrolls will be purchased by the army through the Quartermaster's office of the Chief of Chaplains. The construction of these chapels will, for the first time, obviate for Jewish soldiers the necessity of going to nearby towns with synagogues in order to worship in a proper atmosphere.

Wheeler Denies Bias
In New Radio Talk

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
WASHINGTON.—Taking cognizance for the first time of charges that had been instrumental in injecting anti-Semitism into the recent controversy on the lease-lend bill, Senator Burton K. Wheeler denied, in a broadcast on an NBC network, that he had attempted to spread race hatred.

The leader of the Senate isolationist bloc denounced the "medieval mendaciousness" of racial agitation and said he was "not interested in the race and creed" of the men he had condemned in his recent speeches. He did not attempt to explain, however, why he had singled out the Rothschilds, Warburgs and Sassoons, all Jewish, in a recent broadcast attack on "international bankers."

Lodges Indicate Interest In Post Bowling Tourney

A bowling tournament for B'nai B'rith lodges in Indiana and Kentucky to be held Sunday, April 20, was announced this week by The Jewish Post after entries or applications had been received from eight lodges in the two states.

Inquiries so far include lodges in Hammond, Marion, Evansville, Muncie, Anderson, Louisville, South Bend and Indianapolis.

According to present plans, the tournament will be held at the Parkway Recreation Alleys at 34th and Illinois streets and will culminate in a banquet at a place to be designated later at which the trophy awards and merchandise and cash prizes will be distributed. At the same banquet the Indianapolis B'nai B'rith bowling league will distribute its prize money for the year.

Two events, both in the handicap division, have been arranged—five-man team and singles. First, second, third and fourth places in each division will receive cash prizes, while trophies will be awarded in both divisions for first and second high.

Complete details and entry blanks were being mailed to the lodges this week. The tournament will be authorized by the American Bowling Congress.

The Jewish Post is sponsoring the tournament and all arrangements are being handled by Jack Falk, who is chairman of the Indianapolis B'nai B'rith bowling league and one of the leading bowlers in the state. He can be reached in care of The Jewish Post, Box 1638, Indianapolis.

Says Daily Paper Publicity Is Proper

To the editor,

Your editorial about Jewish organizations seeking publicity in the daily press seems to me to have gotten off on the wrong foot.

Personally, I see nothing wrong if an organization desires to have its name before the public. We certainly receive enough detrimental publicity through regular channels that we have some right to offset it with publicity in our own favor.

Since the Anglo-Jewish press is weekly and far from reaching all the Jewish homes in the community (I have yet to see a sworn circulation statement on either the Post or Chronicle) the only way that organizations can reach all Jewish homes is through the daily press.

Insofar as the publicity for the Purim Ball was concerned, I gave it to the daily press not because I wanted non-Jewish readers to know of our affair but mainly to reach a maximum number of our own people.

In connection with the daily press, they usually do not cut an article and they also provide the cuts at no expense to the organization.

Referring to the Purim Ball article in the Star on the day following the Ball, no one sent that article to the paper. It is customary for papers to give a follow-up on affairs of this type of their own volition. It is part of the newspaper business, and you, of all people should know this procedure.

There is one other phase which I dislike to mention but must be faced. It is the psychological effect of an article in the daily press against one in the Anglo-Jewish press. The same article appearing in the daily press seems to carry more weight and prestige with our Jewish readers. Perhaps some day the Anglo-Jewish press through improvement of make-up and editorial standards, and the cooperation of advertisers will occupy the same position of respect and influence in our own group that the daily papers do in the general community. I believe, after noting the fine content of many Anglo-Jewish papers throughout the country that they are fast arriving at this goal.

Sincerely yours,

HARRY S. JOSEPH.

Our Film Folk HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD — The German film head repeats the Nazi edict to bar all American made film from German-occupied territories—because of their "Propaganda Content." Look who's talking! Answering back, the Anti-Nazi League asks the State Department in Washington to prohibit the exhibition in the U. S. of all Nazi-made movies. Writer Erich Remarque (an "Aryan" not affectionately regarded by Hitler) gave out with a little "inside" to a few friends . . . said the French audiences of Paris don't like the German newsreels . . . show their contempt by rising and leaving for the rest rooms when the Nazi-made news flashes. Also claims the French are making good use of sabotage as a weapon at the airplane factories . . . and added that the English still have an efficient group of spies among the French.

It now appears that David Selznick's sale of two films to the Italian Government was not backsliding, but very clever maneuvering. The adroit sale liquidated frozen capital in Italy . . . and netted 25,650 good American dollars, which he turned over to the British War Relief.

Rumors have it that King Vic and Benny Mussolini had themselves a "sneak" preview of the Chaplinepic . . . and Vicky was limp with laughter. Adolph, they say, has been prevented from seeing it . . . his yes-men fear the explosion would blitz them into never-never-land. The London Daily Mail nominates Charlie for knighthood . . . and Hollywood didn't even hand him a certificate award. "The Dictator," by the way, hasn't yet returned its negative costs, but Chaplin expects to use black ink when the popular-priced bookings get under way.

A non-Hollywood promotion: Major Nathan Levinson, movie sound expert and electrical engineer, was upped to Colonel—without a particle of picture puffery! Director Garson Kanin was caught in the draft . . . right in the middle of shooting . . . a flicker.

hotels had the same trouble as some of those in New York, where German and Italian waiters often adopt a policy of violent non-cooperation for functions arranged to raise British relief funds? . . . If you're wondering just why Fifth Columners get that way, consider that when the Nazis entered Bulgaria one of their first acts was to award life pensions to a list of some hundreds of Bulgarians who had prepared the way for Adolf. . . . PM, New York's five-cent tabloid, will soon carry a series of articles against the Vichy regime by Henri Bernstein, the French play-wright. . . . In charge of special features at the PM office, incidentally, is Beatrice Kaufman, wife of play-wright George S.

One of the finest pieces of writing we've seen in quite a while is William Zukerman's fantasy in the January-March Menorah Journal, "The Refugee from Judea." . . . It's a beautiful and imaginative account of what might have happened if Jesus, instead of accepting crucifixion, had fled Jerusalem and became a refugee in Alexandria. . . . In New York, by the way, weeklies published by refugees for refugees are looking up. . . . Der Aufbau has grown tremendously of late, and carries an amazing number of ads. . . . And The Way in America, published mostly in German but with some articles in English, has begun to appear in a larger format and with a greater number of pages. . . . Richard Rollins' book "I Find Treason" contains revelations startling even at this time, and the volume brings documentary proof of the workings of the Nazi Fifth Column here.

Zionist Leaders Meet Weizmann At Plane; Interview Refused

By DANIEL L. SCHORR

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK.—Worn and nervous from the effects of an arduous four-day air voyage from Lisbon, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish Agency for Palestine and the World Zionist Organization, accompanied by his wife, stepped off the Dixie Clipper at LaGuardia Field at 6 o'clock last Friday morning on a projected two-month visit to the United States.

Pleading lack of rest, Dr. Weizmann refused to be interviewed, but did indicate to a JTA representative that negotiations regarding formation of a Jewish army were still in progress in London. Informed that the London Jewish Standard, Zionist-Revisionist organ, had reported the negotiations deadlocked, he said, "That is not correct." Asked if it could then be assumed that the talks were still in progress, he said, "Yes."

Despite the early hour, a delegation of about 20 Zionist leaders was on hand to greet Dr. Weizmann. Among them were Louis Lipsky, Mendel N. Fisher, Morris Margulies, Jacob Fishman, Meyer Weisgal, Henry Montor, Miss Juliet N. Benjamin, David Wertheim and Arthur Lourie.

As Dr. Weizmann entered the customs room at LaGuardia Field, after having been brought ashore from the Clipper on a launch and being passed by the immigration inspectors, reporters clustered around him for an interview. "I cannot speak," he told them. "I come from a country at war."

Dr. Weizmann would not discuss the results of the interview he had with Prime Minister Winston Churchill before leaving London. Nor would he talk of any aspect of Zionist policy or the scientific work in which he is engaged. He did reveal, however, that one of his sons is a pilot in the Royal Air Force and the other is serving in the British army.

Dr. Weizmann will confer with leading American scientists regarding his chemical research for the British war effort, which he has been conducting in a special chemical laboratory of the British Admiralty, and will discuss with American Jewish leaders plans for enabling Palestine to give maximum aid to the British cause in the Near East.

His first public address was delivered Wednesday evening at a rally in the Hotel Astor.

Gestapo Plans To Try Grynspan After War

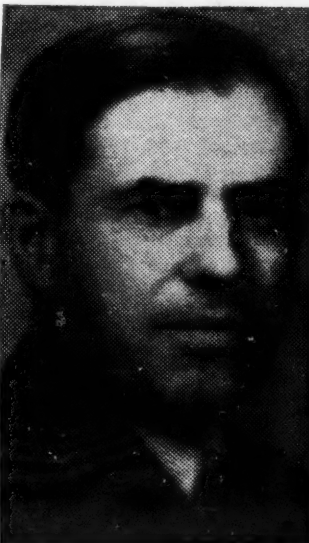

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
ZURICH.—The Gestapo intends to build up the case of Herschel Grynspan, assassin of a German Embassy official in Paris in 1939, into a trial of "international Jewry," according to German reports current in Vichy.

The trial will not be held until after the war, it is said, and the Gestapo will attempt to show that there was a "Jewish-Masonic conspiracy" to assassinate many high Nazi leaders. The Nazi-inspired report said that a "confession" had been obtained from young Grynspan after two months' examination in Germany which would implicate many important Jews. The name of Mayor LaGuardia of New York also was mentioned in connection with the case.

Pointing out that by treaty and congressional enactment the United States government has formally approved establishment of a Jewish national home in Palestine, Senator Wagner declared that this policy had received the public endorsement of Presidents Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, Hoover and Roosevelt.

A meeting has been called for Wednesday, April 2, of all mothers and fathers who have sons between the ages of 9 and 11, and who are interested in cub scouting, to hear George Hofmayer, well-known Cub Scout leader in Indianapolis, discuss ways of making a pack effective and the role that parents play in this program.

Palestine May Be Scene Of a Decisive Battle

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON.—One of the decisive battles of the world may be fought over Palestine, Lord Strabolgi, Chief Labor Whip in the House of Lords and author of a book on the Graf Spee battle, declared in an address at Harrowgate. He said one of the main German war aims was undoubtedly to obtain, by trickery or force, access to the Mosul oil fields. Such an attempt, he pointed out, could be outflanked by a strong British force in Palestine.

Palestine, Lord Strabolgi said, would also be of the greatest importance in the long-distance aerial warfare which would feature such an attempt. He voiced the conviction that the Nazis would attempt a great drive through Turkey to the east as an ultimate threat to India.

League Play Tightens As Season Nears End

In the B'nai B'rith League play last Sunday morning at the Parkway Alleys, the leading Kosof keglers were defeated in three straight games by the fighting A. Z. A. quintet. Mel S. Cohn, who joined the "youths" for the session, displayed rare form and paced the keglers with a 570 total, nosing out Max Kosof's 556 count. Led by consistent shooting of "Bud" Mossler, the Kroot Courtiers took two out of three from the Netzorg Capitals. A 550 aggregate by Mossler was high for the winners and Lou Sagalowsky's 529 topped the loser's column.

In the final series, the "tough guys" on the Shane Specials squad, outsmarted the Falk Seal-skins, who hold down the runnerup position in the League, and took them for two tussles. Erv Lebowitz, the diminutive "hot-shot" from Milwaukee, proved to be the "dead-eye-demon" and registered tallies of 191, 202, and 189 to lead the pack of hungry pin snatchers by a wide margin. Saul Koby's 506, including a 211 figure in his final game, was high for the drooping Sealskins!

AL SEGAL Speaks on Hitler Here

PEOPLE tell me they're afraid to be heard speaking on matters having to do with national policy. Their minds used to feel so free here. Their being Jews had nothing to do with their opinions on public issues in the mind of anyone. Some people might not like Jews but no one questioned the right of Jews to speak their minds, to serve the nation in accordance with their lights, to be for or against this or that.

Not that anything fundamental has changed for them; this is still America, great and good and free, and they are Americans.

But disquieting things have been happening lately. Troubled people have been horribly aware that Hitler is already here. Hitler in the hearts of neighbors, despite the billions being spent to keep him out of America. Hitler in the evil whispering that's going around. Hitler on the streetcars, the subways and the buses. "Don't you know, it's the Jews that have to do with all this defense stuff?" Hitler in the restaurants and the bar-rooms. "It's the Jews that are stirring all this up—this lease-lend and all that."

Hitler carrying picket banners in the capital. "Down with Sol Bloom and his henchmen!" Hitler in the insinuations heard in the speeches of politicians who speak of the machinations of "international bankers."

This is Hitler in America. His presence here was underlined the day the President signed the lease-lend bill by a statement from the Hitler spokesmen in Berlin. He said that the President had been aided in drafting the lease-lend bill by Felix Frankfurter, an Austrian Jew. This showed, he said, that the lease-lend bill was not a defensive measure but an offensive weapon of the Jews who are eager to regain control of Europe.

This was repetitious of all the whispering that has been heard in America—in the streetcars, subways and buses, in the restaurants and bar-rooms, on the banners of pickets, in the speeches of politicians.

It mightn't matter if Jews alone were being hurt. Jews have been hurt so much. Another blow doesn't matter to a man who has been stunned by blow after blow.

More grievous is the hurt America suffers. This is Hitler softening up the defenses of America, Hitler at work on American morale and unity. Hitler dividing American opinion by falsehoods, hates and suspicions, as he divided other peoples before he conquered them.

Hitler whispering, as he has whispered elsewhere before: "No, it's not I who am your enemy. It's the Jews."

A gentleman tells me of becoming shudderingly conscious of Hitler in America on a certain street the other day. He was driving through a green light and narrowly missed a woman who was crossing the street against the light, contrary to the laws and to common sense.

He told her he was sorry even though he was not the one to blame. She turned on him: "You're one of them Jews that's making all the trouble in the world."

This was the voice of Hitler out of the mouth of the stoutish slattern who stood there waving a fist. The gentleman felt troubled on account of America. The woman wasn't alone. Behind her he could see a far-stretching line of people, each whispering into his neighbor's ear. There was a certain clergyman among them. Politicians, Racketeers. Hireling Nazis. The whispering had gone down the line to the woman's ear and she repeated what she had heard: "You're one of them Jews that's making all the trouble in the world."

He drove on. He could take it. He, as a Jew, always had taken it. But he asked what of America? What of America when Americans become the spiritual allies of the brutes against whom America arms for defense?

Warships were being built and airplanes to keep him from these shores but this was Hitler already here.

Yet it has come to the point where an intelligent Jew must take account of his place in this democratic society which in form and in its essential spirit and in the aspiration of its honorable leaders still cherishes its traditional liberties.

Shall he, an American citizen who is a Jew, let himself be intimidated by Hitler waving a fist at him in America? Is he not yielding his democratic rights when he lets fear restrain his tongue from utterance on public policies?

In a group of Jews and non-Jews there was discussion of the lease-lend bill. Most of the non-Jews were vehemently for it, but the Jews gave out no word. They were afraid of being misunderstood. I was there and kept myself wrapped in silence.

Afterward I felt ashamed. This silence was cowardice. It seemed submission to the degradation that anti-Semitism would impose on the Jews of America as it had on Jews elsewhere in the world. This was a debasing acknowledgment of Hitler's authority here.

By my frightened silence I was debasing the high authority of democracy. Democracy is not merely a handsome palladium to be admired at a distance. It is one of the members of the social body to be vigorously used and which grows more powerful by use. It weakens and withers when men are afraid to use it courageously.

I had yielded to the lying banners of the pickets in Washington, to the falsehood of demagogues in Congress and out, to the slattern waving her fist and shouting "You're one of them Jews that's making all the trouble in the world," to Hitler here.

I shall not permit my mind, my heart and my voice to be disfranchised. I must keep on asserting my privilege as an American to speak my mind, to go with my fellow-Americans in the ways that are right, to be wrong even. I shall insist even on the great American right to be wrong.

I, as a Jew, must be courageous to hold up my lights toward the bright, new world that is to come. ((They tell me that I, as a Jew, have some good lights to give to mankind when it starts toiling again up the mountainside toward the brotherhood.))

I shall not run away in fear and cover myself in the shadows.

Hitler seems already here but I, as an American, must courageously challenge his presence.

PASSOVER

Don't worry about Palestine wine this Passover. Despite the blockade, a supply reached American shores this week, making a voyage of over 14,000 miles from Palestine to Syria across the desert to Basrah in Iraq, and then by sea around the Cape of Good Hope.

Various prisons in the eastern states are making preparations for Seders for their inmates. A Seder will be arranged at Ellis Island for detained refugees. The Free Synagogue in New York is making an experiment by arranging a congregational Seder at the Synagogue House for members and their children.

A "Living Haggadah" will be presented by Jewish students at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York every evening during Passover week. It will be a stage production in Hebrew telling in song, dance and dramatic narrative the ancient story of the Jew's bondage and liberation.

KOSHER IRISHMEN

Our correspondent found no O'Goldbergs when he went to the annual St. Patrick's Day dance of the Irish Jews' Association in Chicago. Among the 150 members present, all descendants of Jews who once lived in Ireland, were the Kelleys, Claneys, Delaneys and Mahoneys.

Dinty Moore's old-time Irish eating house in New York was cleared in court of any legal offense for its somewhat regrettable menu which offered "kosher" liver with bacon. William Moore, the owner, insisted that his liver was still kosher if one took onions with it instead of bacon. "It carries the U. S. kosher seal on it and it costs me 90 cents a pound," he said. "I don't mind coming to court on this case, he later commented, but on the day after St. Patrick's Day this does not seem to be kosher either."

DEFENSE NOTES

Kurt Sell, Washington correspondent of the Nazi news agency DNB, the other day telegraphed a five-page story to Berlin. When he had finished he asked the operator what the toll charges were and was quoted a price of $128. The Nazi remarked that this seemed a little high. "This," the operator reminded Hitler's representative, "includes the defense tax."

The proposal to organize a Jewish army for the defense of Palestine is meeting opposition in certain Jewish circles in America. Some question the importance of such a force. The Jewish Agency, however, is continuing to press the British government for the creation of a sizable Jewish military force to fight with Britain, not only for the defense of Palestine but also for the prosecution of the war against the common enemy. If there are Free Czechs, Free Belgians and Free Poles whose military cooperation is sought and recognized, why should this not apply equally to the Jews? the Zionist leaders in this country ask. Among the other arguments they advance is that a Jewish military force is important for the defense of Palestine and is essential to counteract the effects of anti-Semitic propaganda.

Zionists in America are again becoming concerned about the fate of Palestine, in connection with the adherence of Bulgaria to the Axis, which raises grave questions regarding Turkey and Syria. It is felt by Zionist leaders in America that should Turkey, with the aid of Britain, make a stand, the Germans would face a most formidable task in attempting to penetrate to Syria and Iraq. Nevertheless, it is believed that the new situation should quicken British interest in the repeated Zionist offers to provide a Jewish military force of substantial size.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE

The Central Conference of American Rabbis has proclaimed war against divorce. Here is how the war will be conducted. Every synagogue and Jewish community in America will be urged to introduce lecture courses on marriage, organize round table discussions of recently married couples and those about to be married, establish a consultation service for men and women who have domestic problems, arrange pre-marital conferences in which every young couple shall before marriage be instructed in the meaning of marriage in accordance with both Jewish ideals and the conclusions of current social science.

The CCAR also will ask for improvement in the marriage laws of the United States. It believes that at present, with each state having its own marriage and divorce law, the statutes differ so widely that they cause embarrassment and confusion. The rabbinical body therefore urges that all states adopt a uniform marriage law until Congress passes a law to cover the whole country; that an interval of at least five days be required between the time of application for marriage license and the time the license is issued; that an age limit of 18 years for women and 21 for men be set by law, though the rabbis themselves are of the opinion that the best time for marriage is between 20 and 25 for women and 25 and 30 for men; that every couple should undergo thorough medical examinations, with the results being exchanged between man and woman and also presented to the person performing the marriage ceremony; that marriage be prohibited wherever either of the parties suffers insanity, imbecility, tuberculosis or a venereal disease.

The editor's chair,

The editor's chair,

Before you read this chair, read the letter on this page from Harry S. Joseph under the "Freedom of the Press" column, because I want to answer his letter point for point.

I also want to say beforehand that I believe dignified articles about important Jewish affairs very properly should be published in the daily press, and that I am opposed to those who say that no Jewish news should appear therein.

(1) Mr. Joseph says that publicity of the type about the Purim Ball offsets "the detrimental publicity" Jewish people receive. On its face, this is an absurdity. Why would publication of news about a Jewish dance offset the charges of anti-Semitism?

(2) Mr. Joseph claims The Chronicle and The Post do not reach all the Jewish homes. That may be so. But the two papers definitely must reach almost completely every Jewish home whose members are interested in Purim balls. As to a sworn statement, I've never seen a sworn statement of The Indianapolis News, but I don't go around saying they don't have the circulation they claim. The Post is willing to go Mr. Joseph one step better. It will show him the weekly mailing reports from the United States Post Office showing the number of papers sent each week to subscribers.

(3) Statement three is in direct contradiction to statement one in which the Purim ball publicity is supposed to be an antidote to adverse publicity. It bears reiteration that those members of the Jewish community who don't subscribe to either of the two anglo-Jewish newspapers, probably do the most anathema invoking when they see articles about strictly Jewish affairs in the daily paper. Are these the "maximum" number Mr. Joseph wanted to reach. They swear when the name Frankfurter is printed in the daily paper in connection with non-Jewish matters, so what must they do when they see news of relatively unimportant all-Jewish affairs in print.

(4) The Post does not charge and has never charged for cuts it requests for its news columns. It is only when organizations want extra publicity for their own purposes that The Post asks that the cuts be furnished.

(5) As far as cutting an article, Mr. Joseph with little regard for

Community Should Force Members To Give

WITH the 1941 Jewish Welfare Fund drive approaching, arguments are already being advanced pro and con as to the advisability of publishing the list of individual contributions. As suggested last year, The Post is in favor of some method of making known to the community the names of the givers and the amounts contributed.

Like it or not, the annual drive is a self-imposed Jewish tax. If some individuals who can afford memberships in clubs and large automobiles fail to give adequately for the support of Jewish institutions, then those who shoulder their share of the burdens are being unevenly taxed. And some method should be devised to force the selfish by public pressure to either give as their spending for luxuries indicate or stop passing themselves off as leaders or even respectable members of the Jewish community.

A growing awareness of this situation has caused Jewish welfare funds throughout the nation to take steps to meet it. The Post last year suggested publication of a dignified pamphlet carrying all the information about the drive, and a list of the givers. If, however, as some fear, this list might be used for some ulterior purpose, the contributions could be published in The Jewish Post.

The community will probably be asked to give $160,000 this year, although the goal has not as yet been announced. Some big givers may prefer that the amount of their gifts be not published, which is their prerogative, but except for this anonymous few, most people will give more, or be shamed into giving more, if they thought that the amount they gave would undergo the scrutiny of the friends to whom they lost large amounts in card games, or with whom they spent in one night for entertainment more than their whole year's contribution to Jewish causes.

The logic is this. The annual Jewish drive is no longer an obligation to be passed off. To Jews it is definitely and unalterably a self-imposed tax. Of course, the community cannot impose fines or imprisonment for refusal to pay this tax, but the community definitely does have means at its command to demand that each member meet his portion of the obligation to the extent that his economic position warrants.

Lodges Show Interest In Tournament

THE annual bowling tournament for B'nai B'rith lodges, as announced in this issue of The Jewish Post, seems headed for success and a real place in the life of the Jewish community of the two states, Indiana and Kentucky, what with the preliminary announcements having brought replies or entries from lodges in Hammond, Marion, Evansville, Muncie, Anderson, Louisville, South Bend, and, of course, Indianapolis.

Bowling definitely is not a Jewish activity, although the man who wrote the treatise on "Elephants and the Jewish Problem" could probably figure out an angle to advance this contention; but the bringing together in comradeship and play of Jewish men from all parts of two states has a value all its own. The national B'nai B'rith bowling tournament and the local lodge league have proved the value of this type of activity.

Present plans call for two events, five-man and singles, under handicap rules, all to be held Sunday, April 20, at the Parkway Recreation Alleys, 34th and Illinois streets. Prizes in trophies and merchandise have been secured, and, of course, the regular cash awards for high man, second, third and fourth high man and high team and second, third and fourth high team have been arranged. After the bowling a banquet will be held at which the prizes and trophies will be awarded. Prize money in the local bowling league will be awarded at the same banquet.

The entire program has been carefully planned and bowlers may anticipate a day of their favorite sport under the finest conditions of play and sportsmanship.

New York Daily News Decries Attempt to Blame Jews for War Situation—A whispering campaign is now going on to the effect that the Jews are mainly to blame for our being as deep in the war as we now are, and are moving heaven and earth to push us all the way in. After the war, when blame is being dealt around for the inevitable tragedies of it all, this legend will probably be dug up in this country, and anti-Semitism may have a flareup.

The Jews hate Hitler and wish him harm because Hitler first hated them and did them harm. But to call the Jews the prime movers in the United States interventionist movement is simply to talk against the facts in the case. Interventionism is evidently the majority American sentiment, and the most war-minded part of the whole country is the south which has the highest percentage of native American stock and where Jewish influence in politics is almost non-existent.

Wheeler Denies Anti-Semitic Intent in Lend-Lease Bill Radio Talk—Speaking for myself, I have nothing to recant or for which to apologize. I have said, and I repeat, that there are men in the world who are far more concerned with the restoration or the preservation of their economic and social status than with the welfare of the masses of the people. I am not interested in the race or creed of these men. I am concerned, and always have been, with the welfare of the great mass of humanity, with the underprivileged, with the economic and social status of those who are ill-fed, ill-clothed and ill-housed.

Nothing I have said can be interpreted to give comfort to those people here, or in any country in the world, who make a fetish of the persecution of any minority group. I denounce those who seek to play upon the passions and emotions of our people with this kind of medieval mendaciousness.

Today we witness legislative and administrative actions which inevitably must lead to the denial of the rights of minorities. A lend-lease bill, an alien concentration camp bill, an anti-strike bill, a wire-tapping bill—these are the vehicles of one-man government. They will lead to chains and tears for the minorities in our land. Wave after wave of every kind of intolerance will roll over our nation. No minority group, economic, political, racial or religious, can be certain that it will escape the tide. These are the results of war and psychology.

SYMPHONY HOUR PROGRAM

The following program will be presented at the Symphonic Hour at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday, April 1: Beethoven's "Violin Concerto in D Major," played by Jascha Heifetz and the N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra under direction of Arturo Toscanini; and Frank's "Symphony in D Minor." The program is open to the public.

the facts wrote such dribble as "Yes, it's Uncle Sam's night at the 29th annual Purim and Military Ball this Sunday . . . the first affair ever held in the community at which the defenders of our democracy will be the honored guests . . . there should be a fine representation of hand-picked manhood, resplendent in their new uniforms." Since there are only a paltry six or seven Jewish boys stationed at Fort Harrison and at the naval station, evidently Mr. Joseph was indulging in unnecessary indifference to the facts, when he prepared his article. Mr. Joseph's statement that the daily press does not cut an article might find some disagreement among other publicity chairman. In fact, this last is a saving grace of the daily papers situation. Were they to print all the reams of matter sent in by Jewish organizations, then there really would be a problem.

(6) Mr. Joseph is correct about the article in The Star on the day following the ball. On investigation it turns out that The Star reporter called Kirshbaum and someone told him the affair was being held and was a big success, so he wrote his story from the advance publicity. But whether he was told by his city editor to get a follow-up story because of Mr. Joseph's importunation, is a horse of a different color.

(7) Mr. Joseph's last point is his most telling. In fact The Post has always striven toward the goal, not only of prestige, but what necessarily comes first, excellence and achievement in its editorial department. But The Post will never be The Indianapolis Star and that's that. The presidency of the Community Fund is a position which gives any Jewish leader more standing not only with the city at large but even with the Jewish community than, say the presidency of The Jewish Welfare Fund. That is the civilization in which we live. Mr. Joseph's ideal of "respect and influence" can be achieved to some degree, but probably never to the same degree in an anglo-Jewish publication as in a daily paper, unless Mr. Joseph wants to go to Palestine.

I didn't intend to go into the subject very comprehensively as my "chair" last week declared, but since Mr. Joseph in criticizing that "chair," brought up a lot of other points, I thought they might as well be thrashed out now as well as some other time.
